

All may not be lost with out SIPP SOS

Richmond Wealth CEO Chris Bryans is standing up for savers mis-sold high-risk Self-Invested Personal Pension (SIPP) schemes

Across Northern Ireland, SIPPs are causing a lot of sleepless nights. Are you one of the many lifelong savers having nightmares that your hard-earned savings are at risk? Or already lost due to unsuitable pensions advice to invest in property overseas?

My advice: take heart and take action right away. In our experience, working on behalf of clients who have been hit hard by mis-sold SIPPs, it may not be too late to recover your lost pension savings. You could be entitled to compensation.

We have become increasingly concerned about the number of people whose life-savings are now in peril due to poor and unsuitable pensions advice. Mis-selling of SIPP schemes, it seems, has become an epidemic because of the investments being recommended. For inexperienced investors this is putting their entire retirement at risk.

We are committed to help you put things right and protect your interests. If you have doubts about existing SIPP investments, particularly involving offshore property or other unusual investments, Richmond Wealth should be your first port of call.

If you have invested and any of the following danger signs applied to the selling process, there is a good chance you're a candidate for compensation:

Did you lack understanding of SIPPs and the process of investment?

Did you feel under pressure to opt for an investment you did not really need or want? Was there a hard sell?

Were you given information that you now know to be poor or incorrect?

Was there a lack of transparency about fees?

Were you warned about the risky nature of investing in the offshore scheme and the potential financial loss?

Have you been advised to invest in Cape Verde, Storage Pods, Harlequin or Ethical Forestry?

If you answered YES to any of the above, we strongly recommend you seek immediate help from a professional resource you can trust.

It is essential you only work with financial advisers, such as Richmond Wealth, who are fully authorised and regulated by the Financial Conduct Authority to advise on investments.
